ABOUT THE WINE

When asked about the inspiration for this particular wine, winemaker Salvador Batlle Barrabeig suggested, "knowing how to read when life leads you to situations you would never have imagined, and knowing how to get the best out of these because fate has decided this on your life path."

We can definitely vibe with this inspiration and only a few months ago we never knew this wine would cross our path, but you best believe we're going to make the most out of enjoying it now that it has! Salvador's family hails from the Catalonian region of Penedès (think the homeland of Cava) and while he still makes wine there, this project in Empordà is totally his baby. His focus with this project is indigenous varieties (like Carinyena Blanc), strict biodynamic farming, and the use of clay and non-wood aging vessels. His wines are rare, and we were thankful to get a whole case. Of course, as soon as we realized we could, we knew it had to be shared with you!

Tropical and orange flavors give way to elderflower and floral notes with a spiced zesty finish.
