ABOUT THE WINE

This aromatic and bright rosé is a true treat when life isn't all, "kittens and rainbows". We tasted this wine last week when it was a particularly "bad news" kinda day generally, and this wine gave us a nice moment of "wow, this world can be and truly is a beautiful place"! Gareth and Rainbo Belton were both marine plant scientists by trade, and both studied the biodiversity of seaweed groups and how they are related. They even discovered and named a new species. They eventually caught the wine and food bug and started Gentle Folk in 2012 after spending increasingly more time in the Basket Range region with the local pioneering winemakers.

"Our winemaking journey started with just three barrels of wine in 2013 from the Broderick's Basket Range Vineyard, and a dream. Over the years we have been lucky enough to travel parts of the world learning about winemaking and growing, have acquired a lot more vineyard area as well as built relationships with some amazing growers in the Adelaide Hills. We currently produce between six and seven thousand cases annually, employ five lovely humans and farm eight hectares of vines. A kid (Leonard) appeared somewhere in the middle! We hope you have an opportunity to try and enjoy our wines no matter where on earth you find yourself."- Gareth and Rainbo

Zesty, zippy and rambunctious as all get out! Perfect for cracking on a sunny afternoon.
