ABOUT THE WINE

Classic French rosé but don't think for a minute this bottle is boring! It has such a commanding presence on the palate and is thoughtfully made with not just the wine in mind but the local community and environment as well.

“Vignerons Ardechois is a collective of wine producers and farmers located in the southern Ardeche with the aim of creating a supportive and sustainable environment, not only for the land of the Ardeche but for the farmers as well. In 1967, the Vignerons Ardechois built their first winery, a shared facility where efficiency and solidarity were working hand in hand. Today, the collective has grown and now has training systems in place to help young farmers and winemakers learn the skills needed to work their own land with sustainable farming methods to contribute to the health of the Ardeche with respect to the water, air, flora and fauna. They are helping farmers with the installation of bat's nesting-boxes which allow to fight naturally against certain pests of the vine, the plants seeding between the rows of vines to promote the presence of biodiversity in soils, the establishment of beehives next to some parcels of vineyards and the adaptation of cultural practices to preserve these species, and the establishment of a good neighborhood charter to keep building a sense of community among local residents and grape growers.”-Minimum Selections, Importer
